Giant Atlas Rocket Fired Over Atlantic

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -A mighty Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile thundered into space Monday night but the Air Force was silent today on the fate of the giant war rocket.

If the 100-ton missile hit its target, the United States took another great step forward in its campaign to develop a carrier that can drop a nuclear warhead on any target on earth.

There was official silence, however, after the Atlas blasted off at 11 p.m.

"I request that you take action to remove the sheriff of Pickaway County so his successor will investigate and do what is necessary to bring charges."

According to Deputy Sheriff Charles Felkey, who investigated the accident, Seymour and the boy went to the home of Joseph M. Rowland, 34, Route 1, Orient, to obtain gasoline when their auto Rowland returned to the stalled auto with the pair and parked his car so that lights would shine on the auto. The two were pouring in the gasoline when Creamer, blinded by the lights, drove his car into the victim, Seymour, the stalled car and then Rowland's auto. Seymour was injured, but recovered. The boy was killed by the

Liquor Firms Compete with Gay Decanters

Fancy Bottle Trade Being Tossed at Yule Customers

NEW YORK (AP)-Fancy decanters and multicolored, prewrapped gift packages battle to a standoff this year in the perennial holiday struggle to catch the eye of the liquor buyer.

Some firms emphasize the glass containers which have been an annual holiday season arrival almost since the repeal of Prohibition 25 years ago. Others lay more stress on the outside of the package, dressing it up with hand - tied bows, chevrons with heraldic crests and glittering metallic foil in every color and design.

In nearly every case, however, distillers hedge their bets. The decanter proponents use fancy wrappings or a distinctive carton for lesser brands. The gift wrap firms, on the other hand, put their top prestige brands in cut glass, crystal containers.

There are solid reasons for spending millions of dollars and man hours.

The amount of liquor given by one friend to another is impossible to guess, but business giving alone is estimated at 295 to 300 million dollars by Schenley Industries.

The company estimates industry sales in the fourth quarter of 1957 at 67 million gallons vs. an average of 48 million gallons in each of the first three quarters.

Arthur Bondurant, vice president of Glenmore Distilleries Co., Kentucky firm which claims to have originated the decanter idea in 1937, explains the use of special glassware for top brands by saying people like to "trade up" when buying holiday gifts for friends. After all, he says, you don't buy nickel cigars as a Christmas present.

Whatever form the liquor is packaged in, however, Uncle Sam will get the biggest gift-$2.10 in federal excise tax on every fifth.

Change to Metric System?

A novel explanation of why the Soviet Union was the first to launch an earth satellite was offered recently by a British scientist: the Russians use the metric system of measurement.

Actually, Dr. A. H. Hughes of the British Association for the advancement of Science may or may not have been serious in his sputnik-metric system parallel, but of one conviction he is most devoutthe present hodge-podge of measurement standards used by the United States and England must be replaced if men are to be accurate in dealing with the intricacies of the twentieth century.

Scientists, governments and industries in a majority of the nations of the world, including most of the English-speaking countries (with the exception of the two who do not do so still use the system devised by measuring a thumb from the tip to the first joint (an inch), the space between the nose and the extended finger tips of a hand held at right angles to a man's face (a yard), and the amount of land an average man behind an average horse could plow in an average day (an acre).

"These measurements served their purpose in their time," says Dr. Hughes, "but it must be obvious that their time is not the twentieth century."

Because of their rather unique origins,

even U. S.-British, for example, is 36.37 metric liters, the U. S. bushel 35.24. Britons buying a gallon of anything receive 4-546 liters, while an American gallon contains only 3.785 liters.

This adds to the confusion when scientists or businessmen from various countries try swapping technological advances or blueprints. Those used to dealing with tol- kins-but he won't say who. erances of thousands of an inch must convert their computations to millimeters.

In investigating the effect upon the English economy and industry of switching from the present measures to the metric system, Dr. Hughes says, "we want to find out whether we cannot afford to make the change, or whether we cannot afford 40-year-old Persian. Even though not to make the change."

This should provide Congress with an interesting project—to find out whether this country, also, cannot afford not to make the change.

Change to Metric System?

A novel explanation of why the Soviet Union was the first to launch an earth satellite was offered recently by a British scientist: the Russians use the metric system of measurement.

Actually, Dr. A. H. Hughes of the British Association for the advancement of Science may or may not have been serious in his sputnik-metric system parallel, but of one conviction he is most devoutthe present hodge-podge of measurement standards used by the United States and England must be replaced if men are to be accurate in dealing with the intricacies of the twentieth century.

Scientists, governments and industries in a majority of the nations of the world, including most of the English-speaking countries (with the exception of the two who do not do so still use the system devised by measuring a thumb from the tip to the first joint (an inch), the space between the nose and the extended finger tips of a hand held at right angles to a man's face (a yard), and the amount of land an average man behind an average horse could plow in an average day (an acre).

"These measurements served their purpose in their time," says Dr. Hughes, "but it must be obvious that their time is not the twentieth century."

Because of their rather unique origins,

even U. S.-British, for example, is 36.37 metric liters, the U. S. bushel 35.24. Britons buying a gallon of anything receive 4-546 liters, while an American gallon contains only 3.785 liters.

This adds to the confusion when scientists or businessmen from various countries try swapping technological advances or blueprints. Those used to dealing with tol- kins-but he won't say who. erances of thousands of an inch must convert their computations to millimeters.

In investigating the effect upon the Eng- toes. Guess it's up to us to order a lish economy and industry of switching from the present measures to the metric system, Dr. Hughes says, "we want to find out whether we cannot afford to make the change, or whether we cannot afford 40-year-old Persian. Even though not to make the change."

This should provide Congress with an interesting project-to find out whether this country, also, cannot afford not to make the change.

West Must Acquire Unity Adlai Stevenson learned something important during his visit has based his philosophy upon to Soviet Russia. He learned that the dialectical materialism of the unity of Soviet Russia and Karl Marx. This goes back to Red China is cemented fast and the early 1920's and is unrelated that it is formidable. So many to any current situation. In a Americans suffer from the wishful thinking that some day the

. .it would be a very great mistake to underestimate the solidarity of the Soviet Union and China, or, indeed, as Mr. Khrushchev implied, of the whole Communist empire. They may fight like cats and dogs with each other, but as to the outside world their unity is formidable. They will stick together. Theirs is one universe; ours is another. The Polish Foreign Minister used the analogy of a at least for the present.' This appraisal is about 100 per cent correct, barring some sudden upheaval in the world which can change everything. Such an upheaval might be a war. But short of something cataclysmic, there can be little hope for the separation of Red China from Soviet Russia. It is not within the logic of history that there should be such a separation.

What can happen, however, is that in that curious ideological, semi-religious mechanism which binds the components of the Soviet Universal State, Marxism, the prestige of Mao Tze-tung is, at this moment, greater than that of anyone in Russia or in any other part of the Soviet Universal State.

Mao is a professional philosopher. He taught philosophy beword, it is a thorough conviction, long and sincerely held. If Khrushchev is a man of action, Mao is a man of ideas and in the Soviet world, ideas play as great a role as action. In Soviet Russia ideas are taken as seriously as they were in the Middle Ages before everybody became sophisticated. Young people in the Soviet empire are quarrelling over ideas rather than for place to which most cannot accede anyhow because of the restrictions of party membership. The theoretician is an important personage in the Communist Party. If the novel and short story mirror life, the Russian is still more concerned with ideas-with the Russian "soul"-than the peoples of the Western world who devote themselves so much to action.

Even the "Beatniks" of our country are not thinking youth, but a nihilistic youth, frightened by the disappointments of their era. There are no heroic figures among them.

If Sen. John Kennedy and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller are attractive to the younger generation, they have not proved themselves idealistic leaders, speaking in the voice of prophecy, but rather young men of affairs. America has neither a Savonarola nor a Patrick Henry; neither a Sam Adams no a Leon Trotzky. The spirit of revolt from cynicism and despair is not yet in our youth, but the Russian youth believe that the future is theirs

To find a similar unity in the West requires thinking out our basic problems. Curiously our first problem is not economic but spiritual. We need to believe in something positively. Most of our religions have become humanistic rather than theistic; we concern ourselves with the greatness of man rather than with the glory of God.

Even those fundamentalists who believe in the efficacy of prayer, give it a functional purpose like hocking a watch in a pawnshop. One does not pray for something; one prays to God as an act of adoration which is soul cleansing. It is an important point because it could give direction to Western life.

Vet Guarantee Only Used Once

Q-If I get a G. I. Loan on a Wantz. house, and use my full guarantee, am I still entitled to a G. I. Business Loan?

A-Sorry, but you are not. Once you have used your full guarantee, you cannot secure another G. I. Loan, whether it be for a home, business, or anything else. Q-I am a Spanish American War Veteran and my wife died last month. Since I have an income of S. Court St. over 2,000 per year, will I lose my Spanish War pension? A-You will not lose your Span- aration for the curtain opener ish War pension. Income has no Daily practice sessions indicate ing whatsoever on your pennon benefits.

Q-MY HUSBAND died of a ser- Old-Fashioned Arrows vice connected disability, and I am receiving death compensation payments. I am thinking about going to work, but my neighbors tell me that if I do, I will lose my compensation. Is that correct?

A-That is not correct. If your husband died as the result of a service connected disability, income will have no bearing on your benefits. You may go to work if you so desire, and you can make as much as possible. You will always continue to receive this compensation unless you remarry.

Q-I have been informed that as the wife of a veteran who is 100 per cent disabled due to a service connected disability, that I am entitled to medical treatment, hospitalization, and dental treatment at V. A. expense. Is that correct?

A-That is not correct. Wives of war veterans are not entitled to VA treatment, regardless of how much disability the veteran has, unless, of course, the wife herself is a war veteran.

Q-I entered the service on Sept. 3, 1918, and was discharged on May 5, 1919. A friend of mine tells me that I am not entitled to any veterans benefits because I did not serve 90 days prior to the Armistice. Is that correct?

A-Your friend is completely wrong. To be eligible for World War I benefits, a veteran must have served 90 days of active duty, any part of which must have started prior to Nov. 11, 1918.

Pettit Averaging 30 Points per Tilt

NEW YORK (AP) - Bob Pettit of St. Louis surpassing the record set by the incomparable George Mikan, is the first player in National Basketball Assn. History to average 30 points a game at any stage of the season.

Pettit currently ranks third in the league scoring race with 270 points in 9 games, right on the 30-point a game button. Mikan had a 9-game pace of 29.3 in 1950. The Hawk star trails in the battle for scoring honors only because he has played in fewer games than the leaders. Detroit's George Yardley, who has seen action in 12 games, tops the point-getters with 290 for a 24.2 average. Minneapolis rookie Elgin Baylor is second with 285 points for a 23.8 average. Two of Princequillo's promising 2-year-olds during 1958 were Sherry Prince, woned by Ralph Lowe, and Black Hills of the King Ranch.

Volume No. 135 at Page 168, Pickaway County, Deed Records.

Title acquired to the above described premises by instrument recorded in Volume 159, Page 720, Deed Records of Pickaway County, Ohio.
